

Domestic Relations Orders for the North Carolina Supplemental Retirement Plans

Revised May 2024

The Supplemental Retirement Income Plan of North Carolina (NC 401(k) Plan) and the North Carolina Public Employee Deferred Compensation Plan (NC 457 Plan) are supplemental, defined contribution plans that are sponsored by the State of North Carolina and administered by the North Carolina Department of State Treasurer and the North Carolina Supplemental Retirement Board of Trustees. Empower has been hired by the Department and the Board to serve as the third-party administrator for the NC 401(k) and NC 457 Plans.

Review of Domestic Relations Orders

A domestic relations order (DRO) is a court order that divides the account of a retirement plan participant – such as a participant in the NC 401(k) or NC 457 Plan – between the participant and an alternate payee (e.g., a former spouse) pursuant to applicable law.

The Department will review a DRO that has been entered by a court to determine whether it can be administered by the NC 401(k) or NC 457 Plan. The Department also will review draft DROs prior to entry by a court to determine whether the DRO could be administered by the NC 401(k) or NC 457 Plan if it were entered by a court.

The Department's response to a draft or entered DRO will be sent to Empower, which will respond to the participant and alternate payee (or their attorneys, if any). If the Department determines that a DRO cannot be administered, the Department may respond directly to the participant and/or alternate payee (or their attorneys, if any).

Authorization to Review Draft Domestic Relations Orders

The request to review a draft DRO must be accompanied by one of the following:

1. A signed and notarized consent from the plan participant (see attachment); or
2. A subpoena issued to the Department regarding the participant's account information for the NC 401(k) Plan and/or NC 457 Plan.

Note: A DRO that has been entered by a court does not require an accompanying affidavit or subpoena.

Model DROS

Model DRO templates for the NC 401(k) and NC 457 Plans are available on the Department's website at www.myncretirement.com/retirees/domestic-relations-orders.
